Intended Victim, Harry Hewitt, Oxford Valley, Fights Two Men

SHOTS ARE EXCHANGED

Make Get-Away in Car Which Is Abandoned Short Distance from Scene

LANGHORNE, Pa., Jan. 12.—(INS)—Two desperadoes, who sought to avenge a comrade, sent to prison for 50 years, were foiled today when their intended victim fought free of their grasp and fled to safety in the darkness. Then returning with a shotgun from his home, he fired two charges of buckshot into their car as they sped past.

The intended victim is Harry Hewitt, 35, of Oxford Valley, owner of a garage near here. Early today the men offered Hewitt's establishment and asked to see a directory. When he returned with the book, they drew pistols and backed him into a corner.

"We're going to bump you off," one of the men declared. "You're the guy who sent our buddy away for 50 years not long ago."

Then they forced him into the rear of the garage. There he struck one of the men with his fist and fled through a rear door. As he ran toward his home, he was pursued by a hail of bullets from the robbers' guns.

Amazed when their intended prey escaped safely, the intruders jumped into a passing car and forced the driver to hurry them away.

Hewitt fired at the retreating machine, blowing off one of the rear fenders, but the men sped on. State Police later found a machine abandoned nearby. It was identified as one that was stolen from Brooklyn, N. Y.

No Word Received From South Atlantic Aviators

HORTA, Azores, Jan. 12.—(INS)—The stormswep reaches of the South Atlantic today held the secret of the long overdue missing "Tradewind" and its two occupants on a payload New York-Paris flight.

The missing plane piloted by Mrs. Beryl Hart with Captain William S. MacLaren as navigator, left Bermuda near Saturday noon and was due here Sunday. No news of it had been received here up to a late hour this morning.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(INS)—Silence only today answered countless radio requests for sighting of the plane carrying Mrs. Beryl Hart and William S. MacLaren from Bermuda to the Azores.

Ships at sea reported they had neither seen nor heard the plane and radio communications centers in New York said no word had been received of the missing fliers.

IN HOSPITAL

Dominick Baldoe, Tullytown, was treated at the Harriman Hospital on Saturday for a confused wound of the forehead, bridge of nose and left cheek. Baldoe told those who attended to his injuries that the wounds had been administered by a colored man who came from a Lake street house, further stating he did not know just why they were administered.

MOTHERS TO MEET

Mothers' Association will meet in the high school auditorium Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

CHAMBERSBURG, Jan. 10.—(INS)—A German shepherd dog, commonly known as a "police dog," has been assigned to the local unit of the Pennsylvania State Police force, with Trooper Hugo Tacchi attached to the sub-station here to have charge of the animal.

The dog is one of those trained recently by State police and Eastern penitentiary attaches at Graterford. It obeys only its master, and only commands spoken in French.

STATE NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

LANCASTER, Jan. 12.—(INS)—Erection of a workhouse and industrial farm, for joint use of eight southeastern Pennsylvania counties, has been proposed by District Attorney John P. Butt, of Adams county. It was disclosed here, in an attempt to relieve crowded conditions in the prisons of the several counties.

District Attorney S. V. Hosterman, of Lancaster county, who made known the intent of backers of the project, called attention to the fact that such joint institutions are authorized under an act of the Pennsylvania general assembly passed in 1917.

"That act," the district attorney said, "provides for division of the counties of the state into nine districts. The third district is composed of Adams, York, Lancaster, Cumberland, Dauphin, Perry, Northumberland, Lebanon and Lancaster counties."

Miscellaneous Shower Given Mrs. Dasenburg

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 12.—A miscellaneous shower was tendered Mrs. Harold Dasenburg by Miss Marion E. Peck, at the latter's Main street residence, here, on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Dasenburg, whose marriage occurred in November, will be remembered as Miss Harriet Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Cox, of Bellevue avenue.

The guest of honor received many lovely gifts after she had followed cords to the hiding place of the parcels in various portions of the rooms of the Peck home.

Instrumental music and vocal selections were enjoyed throughout the evening, and refreshments were served.

Those in attendance at this delightful affair were: Mrs. Martha Main and Miss Nellie E. Main, of South Langhorne; Mrs. Susan MacCorkle, Miss Erda M. Schatt, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Cox, Rev. and Mrs. Francis E. Walz, Mr. and Mrs. Dasenburg, Mr. and Mrs. Eli M. Peck, Miss Marion E. Peck, of Hulmeville; Mr. and Mrs. George Piddock, of Langhorne.

MRS. RYAN RE-ELECTED ASSISTANCE FUND HEAD

Mrs. Frank Lehman is Appointed Member of the State Committee

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 12.—At the January meeting of the board of trustees of the Mothers' Assistance Fund of Bucks County, the annual election of officers was held which resulted in the re-election of the present officers:

President, Mrs. William C. Ryan, Doylestown; vice-president, Mrs. Edward Blackfan, New Hope; treasurer, Miss Laura C. Haines, Doylestown.

Mrs. Frank Lehman, vice-president of the board of trustees, has been appointed a member of the state-wide Mothers' Assistance Educational Committee. The State is divided into nine districts and the district Mrs. Lehman will represent comprises Bucks, Montgomery, Chester, Delaware and Philadelphia counties. Meetings of the committee will be held in various parts of the State for the purpose of giving more publicity to Mothers' Assistance work.

The Pennsylvania State conference of social welfare will hold its annual meeting in Reading, February 24, 25, 26 and 27. Mrs. Minerva Epstein, executive secretary, and Mrs. Edward Blackfan, recording secretary, will attend the conference.

The Pennsylvania State conference of social welfare will hold its annual meeting in Reading, February 24, 25, 26 and 27. Mrs. Minerva Epstein, executive secretary, and Mrs. Edward Blackfan, recording secretary, will attend the conference.

The annual contribution of money from the club's composing the Federated Women's Clubs of Bucks County was reported at the meeting of trustees. The amount thus contributed is known as the Christmas club fund.

In addition to using a part of it to bring Christmas cheer to mothers who receive assistance, the major portion of it is used for emergency needs. The club's contribution it is said, is a great help to the trustees in their work of caring for the mothers and children. The trustees receive in addition to the contribution from the clubs a very substantial sum from a Bucks county woman who is interested in philanthropic work. All this money is used with care and where in the best judgment of the trustees, it will do the most good.

The February meeting of the board will be held Tuesday, Feb. 17, at which time the field representative from Harrisburg will be present to assist in problem cases as well as to visit some of the Bucks county families who receive assistance.

LADIES' AID TO MEET

Ladies' Aid of the Harriman M. E. Church will meet tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Sheldon, 351 Garfield street, and a request is made that all members endeavor to attend.

CONGRESSMAN HENRY W. WATSON PREDICTS EARLY BUSINESS REVIVAL -- NATION'S LEADERS PREPARING FOR BIG INDUSTRIAL BOOM IN YEAR 1931, HE SAYS

All Indications Point to Beginning of the Recovery From the World-Wide Business Depression -- Is Opposed to Extra Session of Congress—Would Disturb Business, He Says

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—All indications point to a beginning of the recovery from the world-wide business depression during 1931 and there should be no extra session of Congress to interfere with the return to normalcy in this country Representative Henry W. Watson, of Langhorne, Pa., asserted in a statement here today.

Mr. Watson, a former banker and now a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said it was the opinion of some of the most prominent manufacturers and business men of Pennsylvania with whom he had discussed conditions recently that the situation justified optimism and that they were preparing for a business revival.

He referred to the Government's program for highway improvements, public building construction and other projects which he said would substantially affect the unemployment problem at many points throughout the country.

"It is of importance that there should be no interference by agitation at Washington," Representative Watson continued. "Can any one conceive of a substantial reason for an extra session of Congress, that political squabble may be continued with its disturbing influence upon the financial and business world?"

"Seven appropriation bills have passed the House, including the drought measure signed by President Hoover, and only six similar bills remain, two of which have been reported to the House."

"The United States is passing through the greatest period of industrial paralysis it has witnessed since

Mrs. I. S. Pimm to Speak At Epworth League Rally

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 12.—Mrs. I. S. Pimm is scheduled to speak at the bi-monthly rally of the Bristol Group, Epworth League, in the Nesheaminy M. E. Church, here, on Friday evening. The rally will commence at 8.15 o'clock.

Howard Phillips, of Langhorne, group president, and his cabinet, are arranging a splendid program for this meeting, and refreshments will be served by the local league which will act as host.

Members of Epworth Leagues within the Bristol Group area, and all others interested will be welcomed.

APPALACHIAN TRAIL IS NEARING COMPLETION

Extending from Maine to Georgia it Traverses Entire State of Pennsylvania

MANY MILES CLEARED

HARRISBURG, Jan. 12.—(INS)—Selected for its adaptability to recreational use, particularly that of the hiker, the famous "Appalachian Trail," extending from Maine to Georgia and traversing the entire state of Pennsylvania, is rapidly nearing completion.

The greater portion of the trail through the state is now marked, and with steps taken recently for blazing of the route through southern Pennsylvania and northern Maryland, one of the last links in the route will be completed.

The last stretch added to the trail in this state was through the Mont Alto and Micoheux state forests, where 31 miles were cleared and marked, springs cleaned out and rest shelters set up for hikers.

Working with similar organizations in neighboring states, the Appalachian Trail Club has formulated plans for finishing up the remaining work early this year and by summer it is expected the entire route will be well-marked as far as Washington, D. C.

Development of the trail, which follows the crest of the Appalachians, in southern Pennsylvania was delayed for some time because of indecision as to whether it should be laid over North or South Mountain. The latter route was finally selected, to afford direct communication with a section of the trail marked by the Potomac Appalachian Club from Harper's Ferry through to Shenandoah National Park.

Development of the trail has been endorsed by the state department of Forests and Waters and the route on the mountains of southern Pennsylvania was suggested by T. O. Bradley, district forester of Mont Alto, and J. R. Williams, district forester of the Micoheux Forest.

Existence of a well-marked, continuous hiking trail through many hitherto unpenetrated regions is expected to the Civil War. We do not require any additional legislation at this time. The country should be given a rest from political agitation.

"When Congress convenes for the next regular session in December the country will be in better humor, and then legislation can be considered for reconstruction of our business and trade relations. The return to prosperity rests with the people, not with Congress. During the period from March 4th until December the public will have the opportunity for reflection, and will be more competent to advise Congressmen respecting legislative subjects. Most of the Republican leaders in Washington are opposed to an extra session."

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Morrisville Residents Likely To Agree on Grading Proposition

FIRE CALLS REPORT

Disagreement over grading and borough acceptance of certain streets in the Washington Heights section of Morrisville, which at one time threatened to lead to prolonged court action, is on its way toward settlement.

A meeting was held which was attended by members of the borough council, taxpayers of the section, and Charles H. Baker, Trenton, one of the owners of the Washington Heights Realty Company which developed the tract.

Residents of the section have protested that they pay borough taxes, but receive few improvements in return. The borough declared that it could not accept the streets and provide improvements until the streets were shown at proper grade.

Through a statement by Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, who was called from another meeting, it was established that profiles and maps of certain streets in the area had been submitted.

Decision was finally made that Edmund Storer, borough engineer, be asked to determine what the expense would be in arranging grades now for streets involved so that they may be turned over to the borough for improvement.

Laura Frick Hartzel, Elsie May Hartzel and Jennie Hartzel Smiley were named as executors of the estate of the late James M. Hartzel, Chalfont, estimated at $234,194.23, according to an inventory filed in the office of the Register of Wills, at Doylestown. Among other inventories filed were those of Eliza J. Lettice, Warrington township, $7299; estate of Julius A. Feuer, Morrisville, $4724.37, and the estate of Letitia B. Kreswon, Southampton township, $2429.

One letter of administration and numerous wills were filed including that of Edward W. Luff, Bristol, whose $14,000 estate was bequeathed to his daughter and two sons; estate of Robert McIntosh, Doylestown, letters to Edward Kolbe, $468.

Estate of Michael Martin, Chalfont, letters to Stanley Martin and John L. Dubois, $5,000; estate of William Anderson, Falls township, letters to Gertrude Anderson, $3,000, and the estate of Letitia Kreswon, Upper Southampton township, letters to George Kreswon, $2359.

Letters of administration were granted to the estate of Elizabeth Farina, Bristol, letters to Luigi Galzerano, $360.

Property damage by fire in Doylestown during 1930 amounted to approximately $250,000. It was estimated by Assistant Fire Chief Frank Stover. He also estimated that the value of the property endangered would amount to close to $400,000. This is one of the largest fire losses in the history of the borough.

There were seventy-four fire calls answered by the Doylestown Fire Company in 1930—nearly all of them out of town—but the most disastrous was the fire at the Cold Spring Worsted Mill, Doylestown.

A record kept by Assistant Chief Stover shows the fire calls answered by the local company were listed as follows:

Chimneys, 8; barns, 10; houses, 8; defective electric wiring, 2; high tension wires, 1; electric motor, 1; motorbus, 1; private garages, 4; service stations, 2; straw pile, 1; tool house, 1; school house, 1; rubbish piles, 2; outbuildings, 3; store, 1; feed mill, 1; manufacturing biles, 4; chicken houses, 2; grass plants, 2; restaurant, 1; automobile and field fires, 18.

Two of the ten barn fires that the local company assisted in extinguishing were caused by lightning. Grass fires were not as numerous in 1930 as they were in 1929.

Pennsylvania Cuts Fare Between Here and Phila.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has announced a reduction in fare between Bristol and Philadelphia effective January 15th. The new fare rate is on what is known as a "Shopper's Ticket," and it will sell for the return trip 60 cents cheaper than the present return rate of fare.

The "Shopper's Ticket" will sell for $1.14 return while the present rate of fare is $1.74 return.

The Company's statement reads as follows:

"The new Shopper's Ticket from Bristol and intermediate stations to Philadelphia and return, effective January 15th, is a one-day excursion ticket, at attractively low fares, making still more available the comprehensive suburban train services and affording a comfortable trip to the city and back, any day. Half-fare tickets for children five years of age and under twelve. Baggage may be checked.

"Ticket agents will be glad to give more detailed information."

TWO RAIDS STAGED IN LOWER BUCKS COUNTY

Two Arrests Are Made at The Vagabond Inn Near Morrisville

GUESTS ARE SURPRISED

State Police and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo are again waging war against the hotels and roadhouses illegally selling booze in Bucks County.

Late Saturday night about 150 merry-makers were surprised when the police visited the recently opened Vagabond Inn, a mile west of Morrisville on the Lincoln Highway.

Lewis Mack, master of ceremonies, and Thomas Murray were arrested as the alleged proprietors of the roadhouse. According to police numerous bottles of liquor were found on tables but none of the patrons claimed ownership. A thorough search of the night club failed to reveal any hidden liquor.

Questioned for more than two hours, Mack and Murray, who gave their addresses as the Hanover House in Trenton, N. J., were finally released due to lack of evidence.

The raiders entered the night club during the height of the evening's revelry. They ordered the six-piece orchestra to leave, and then seized the bottles found on the tables. The raid was made at the instigation of District Attorney Eastburn, of Doylestown, following a number of complaints.

Corporal Deane, of the Morrisville State Police, and Corporal Wagner, of the Langhorne barracks, led the raid, accompanied by State troopers, Chief of Morrisville Police Cooper, Constable Andrew Thompson and Bucks County Detective Russo.

State Police and Detective Russo raided the Brick Hotel at Newtown early Saturday morning. Four barrels of cider and some near beer with government labels on it were found.

The raid was made upon complaints received by the county authorities. No arrests were made but samples of the cider and near beer were taken for analysis.

BOY, 11, DROWNED AS ICE BREAKS UNDER HIM

Fioro Liberatore Meets Death As He Plays Ice Hockey

BODY SOON RECOVERED

Fioro Liberatore, 11, 349 Lafayette street, was drowned in the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal, Saturday afternoon while playing ice hockey with a number of other children. The ice gave way under the running and jumping of the youngsters and Liberatore slipped into the ice cold water before any of his companions could reach him.

One of Fioro's little chums ran from the P. R. R. bridge where it crosses the canal, down to Jefferson avenue, and the police were telephoned for. Chief Jones and his men responded on a fire apparatus and the body of the youngster was quickly located and dragged out of the water. Life was extinct.

Chief Jones is satisfied that the lad was not in the water over 10 or 15 minutes, and feels confident that had it been warmer weather the boy's life would have been saved.

Full Military Honors For Franklin Gilkeson

Full military honors will be accorded Franklin Gilkeson, this afternoon, when he will be buried from the residence of Dudley E. Bell, 824 Radcliffe street, where he made his home. Hundreds of people visited the Bell residence last night to pay their last respects of affection and esteem to the deceased. Services were conducted by the Bristol Lodge of Elks of which Mr. Gilkeson was a member.

The Bucks County Bar Association met Saturday night in annual session at the Manufacturers Club in Philadelphia at which time appropriate resolutions were drawn and adopted in honor of Mr. Gilkeson.

The committee on resolutions was composed of Thomas Ross, Henry A. James, J. Hibbs Buckman, Arthur M. Eastburn and Oscar O. Bean.

There were about 32 members of the Bar present at the meeting and officers were chosen for the ensuing year as follows:

President, Wesley Keeler, Doylestown; vice-president, Henry A. James, Doylestown; secretary and treasurer, L. J. Vanartsdalen.

Directors: Howard I. James, Bristol; Thomas Ross, Arthur M. Eastburn, J. Hibbs Buckman, William H. Satterthwaite, Webster Grim.

BLAZE ATTRACTS MANY MOTORISTS TO THE FIRE SCENE

Fire Marshal Confident That Blaze Was of Incendiary Origin

PARTLY INSURED

Owner States That She Will Rebuild at An Early Date

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 12.—Upon completion of his investigation into the fire which totally destroyed a large barn with its contents of live stock, farm machinery and grain at Hulmeville and Bristol roads, one mile south of here, Saturday night, Bucks County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse gave it as his opinion that the blaze was of incendiary origin. "I believe that the place was set afire," said Stackhouse, after he had revisited the place and checked reports and the conditions of the ruins.

The barn was owned by Mrs. Margaret Yorke who was visiting in Shipensburg, Pa., at the time. She received a telegram at midnight and reached her home at eight o'clock yesterday morning.

Fire Marshal Stackhouse estimates the loss at not over $12,000. It is partially insured, there being total policies for $5,000 on the buildings and $2500 on the contents.

Mrs. Yorke stated that she will rebuild. Looking at the heap of charred ruins and the burned carcasses of 1,000 chickens, 14 sheep and one cow, in addition to the ruins of 700 bushels of grain, 15 tons of hay and farm machinery, she philosophically remarked: "I will rebuild. What is a farm without a barn?"

Two horses were saved from the flames. One pig sustained a broken leg and one sheep was badly burned.

The flames were discovered at about 10.10 Saturday night by Antonio Mituliez, farmer, employed by Mrs. Yorke. Mituliez occupies a small tenant house near the barn.

The structure was stone stable high and the barn was two stories high and measured 45 feet by 80 feet.

A large concrete silo adjoining the barn was damaged by the flames as were also two out-buildings which were afire on several occasions. These were saved by the firemen. The main dwelling was never in danger and the tenant house, while nearer the blazing structure was never really in danger of the blaze.

The burned building was in good condition having been built about 25 years ago and repaired last October. It had a metal roof and when the structure was built it replaced one previously destroyed by fire.

Firemen from Hulmeville, Newportville and South Langhorne fought the flames. The Hulmeville pumper drew water from a small creek about 700 feet from the fire. The creek had been dammed for fire purposes. The Newportville pumper drew water from a man-hole of the Bell Telephone Company's underground cable conduits. This man-hole, built of concrete, was about 600 feet from the fire and measured 20 feet deep, 12 feet long and eight feet wide. The water which seeps through the underground conduit lines

By "THE STROLLER"

A few days ago I received a letter from an old friend who resides in a distant town, in which was expressed the pleasure which was enjoyed as the various effusions were read, which have been published recently in the Bristol Courier, under the inscription, "By The Stroller." It appears that the two which were enjoyed most were the "Ode to Bristol" and "The Old Time Christmas Tree." The contents of the letter started my thoughts in a retrospective channel, and very soon in memory I was back among the old friends of my boyhood. The following composition is dedicated to this old friend who wrote the letter.

"My Friends of Yesterday"

One night I sat in the twilight,
And rested my weary brain,
As the mellow light of the rising moon
Shone in through the window pane.

The cares of the day had vanished,
And a peaceful calm had come,
Which artfully stilled the clatter and noise
Of the city's busy hum.

As the evening shadows lengthened,
And my brain relaxed its strain,
An on-rushing flood of memories came
Over my thoughts to reign.

The ringlets of smoke rose slowly,
And in the tobacco's glow,
Came a vision of enchanting sweetness,
Of my friends of long ago.

Each dear familiar face I saw,
Sweet voices whispered to me;
I lived again those by-gone days
In my fertile memory.

The vision passed all too quickly,
But within my brain to stay,
Will ever remain the memory
Of my friends of yesterday.

WINGS

More than four centuries ago Leonardo da Vinci made a prophecy: "There shall be wings." Fulfillment of that prophecy by the Wright brothers makes it most appropriate that the words of the Italian genius be inscribed upon the imposing memorial to be erected at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in commemoration of their epochal achievement.

Already the design for the monument has been chosen, a triangular pillar resting on a base the shape of the star that distinguishes the military and naval planes of the United States. At first it was proposed that the monument take the form of a lighthouse, but the accepted design contemplates no utilitarian purpose to detract from the tribute to the inventors of the heavier-than-air flying machine.

This monument is destined to become a shrine to air-minded pilgrims from near and far. And as the nation takes more and more to the air the monument and the achievement for which it stands will take on a new significance. The world now knows that the Wright brothers started something that has assumed vaster proportions than even they dreamed of and that the frail contraption which took to the air at Kitty Hawk was the forerunner of a new and greater transportation system.

This generation smiles at the air-ignorance of the world in those Kitty Hawk days. It considers itself air-conscious. Tomorrow magnetic currents of the air may be harnessed to propel the craft of the air and flying may become as instinctive as motoring now is. If so, picture if you can the tolerant amusement with which these times will then be regarded.

FORTY-SEVEN VARIETIES

Forty-seven bills before Congress to give emergency financial assistance to unemployed World war veterans create, by implication, the impression that only by more laws can the Federal Government render relief to these men. General Frank T. Hines, administrator of the veterans' bureau, explodes this notion with a timely statement of facts and figures:

General Hines shows that $425,000,000 will be available for loans to ex-service men on their bonus policies this year and that the veterans' bureau is prepared to lend $20,000,000 to more than 300,000 veterans during the current month upon application by them.

Veterans may borrow this year up to 22½ per cent of the maturity value of their policies without forfeiting future protection for themselves and their dependents. Though their present plight makes that allowance inadequate, there will come a time in the lives of many veterans or their dependents when a balance left in bonus policies will save them from a worse plight.

The head of the veterans' bureau may not have stemmed the tide of congressional generosity toward the ex-service men, but he has convinced the public that the huge outlay proposed in those 47 varieties of veterans' relief is not as urgent as claimed.

Veterans must be spared the suffering of destitution, and one way to accomplish this is to prevent politicians from exploiting their misery and wasting public funds.

STATE COLLEGE PROFESSOR ADDRESSES FARMERS UPON THE FUTURE OF AGRICULTURE IN BUCKS COUNTY AT MEETING HELD IN DOYLESTOWN

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 12.—The great spiritual resources of rural life and work was pictured in a most optimistic manner by W. V. Dennis, head of the department of rural sociology, State College, in a splendid address before several hundred men and women attending the afternoon session of the annual meeting of the Bucks County Farm Bureau in the community hall of Salem Reformed Church.

His address, in the opinion of many, was outstanding in farm bureau meetings. Likewise, yesterday's annual meeting was described by the retiring president as the "liveliest" that has ever been held in the history of the farm bureau.

"Is There A Future for Agriculture in Bucks County?" was the timely subject for Mr. Dennis' after-dinner talk.

"This pinch of hard times is going to make the youth of this country more serious-minded," the speaker declared. "As for the future of agriculture in Bucks county I can only predict success. This meeting today alone shows that the farmers of the county are above the average for turning out so well to the annual meeting."

"But at the same time, as farmers, you have a measure of responsibility that you must carry out."

"Do not forget that today there are 1,000,000 other farmers being fed and the same group will have to be assisted throughout the winter. The drought of last summer and fall has caused a condition that never before has occurred in this country."

"In Virginia and other states children of the schools bring a vegetable to school each day that is mixed into a soup so that many of the pupils can at least get one meal a day."

"Get out your ledgers here in Bucks county when you go home and mark down, not the losses, but the things that you can be thankful for in this county; some of the things that you have never before recorded in your ledgers."

"One of the things that farmers can be happy about is the increased interest in agriculture that has taken place during the past ten years by the banks, the press, the service clubs, the published novels—all if this bids well for a bright future in agriculture that hard times cannot take away."

"Farmers have increased in group or class consciousness, many without even incorporation. They have come to realize the value of working together."

"Do you realize that many farms in Bucks county have been taken over by young men who are graduates of State College and other agricultural schools at a time when expert knowledge is needed on the farm? The majority of the master farmers of Pennsylvania are under 40 years of age."

"Hard times will not affect that group of men. And as long as you elect as your leader and president of the Bucks County Farm Bureau, a man the type of H. G. Benner, of Coopersburg, you in Bucks county have nothing to fear in the way of hard times on the farms if you follow out his advice and leadership. You cannot help but succeed."

"Hard times will only give an added impetus to the development of farm life with trained men on the farms."

"Here in Bucks county you have twenty-one consolidated schools. What you have to watch if you are directors and residents of the rural community is to see to it that the teachers in those schools and the principals have the rural point of view, and do not do what the high schools of Pennsylvania have been doing for some years—drawing the boys and girls away from the farms."

"One of your big assets in Bucks county is the 4-H Club work. You have 5400 boys and girls in Bucks county. I am glad they are being brought up under this period of depression, in a way, for it will instill in them the necessity of being serious-minded."

"One of the saddest things in Pennsylvania today is the filtering away of boys and girls from the country to the cities. They are missing the golden opportunity. It is not the reward of big money to remain in the country, it is sure, but it is the reward of undreamed of happiness and independence."

"Look at the security of the farmers of Bucks county as compared with the industrial workers. The farm failures are only a fraction of a percent compared with failures in other businesses."

"Many of your sons who have graduated from college in professions are now losing their jobs or have difficulty in finding jobs."

"There are about 4400 farms left in Bucks county with 19,800 farm folks living on the farms and enjoying home life there. Are they prospering?"

"Forty-one per cent have telephones, 29 per cent have bath tubs, 35 per cent have modern heating systems, and 97 per cent have at least one automobile on the farm."

"You are in Bucks county somewhere between 35 and 40 per cent better off than the other counties of Pennsylvania."

"In the last three years you spent $319,000 in adding modern heating systems and bath rooms and running water to your farm houses. You are spending $2,700,000 every year in Bucks county to keep your passenger automobiles running on the highways."

"You are spending in Bucks county a total of $3,500,000 a year for things that your fathers never looked at! Sure I am glad that you have had it to spend. Is there a future in agriculture in Bucks county? Do not those figures partly answer the question?"

"We are coming back to normal at that. The time is coming as a result of experts on the farm and hard times, that we will not travel as much as we have in the past few years, and as fast. We are going to rediscover our neighbors and spend more time with them and at home."

"Take a stock account of your farm when you get back home. Get rid of the poor producing crops and cattle and follow the advice of the agricultural extension service."

"There is positively no hope for the farmers of Bucks county or any other county who have no faith and courage in their fellowmen, faith in God and faith in the future."

Miss Rowena Armstrong was introduced at the afternoon session as the new home economics worker for Bucks county. She will be on full time in this county and takes the place of Miss Beadles, who will devote her entire time in the future to Montgomery county.

Members of the Farm Bureau gave Miss Beadles a rising vote of thanks for her splendid services rendered here in the past five years. Miss Armstrong, who is a native of New Jersey, was educated in Maine and has been doing home economics work in New Hampshire and in Nevada.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, vibrant and beautiful, becomes cynical toward love when she gives up Mat Tully at her mother's request because he is poor. She encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy married man, who, enamored of Nancy, wishes to divorce his wife. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur. Leaving her chaperones, the rich Porters, Nancy, after a violent but brief courtship, secretly marries Roger. Her folks at home wonder at her continued absence. In Reno on their honeymoon, Roger pleads with Nancy to write her mother of their marriage. Mrs. Hollenbeck learns of the return of Mrs. Porter.

CHAPTER XXI.

"WELL, who could be sending. . . we'll have to put them in water!" Mama's eager finger picked at the string of "American beauties, and such QUANTITIES! I'll just look at the card—"

Instinctively Louise had reached for it—she was so used to shielding Nancy's secrets, but she was just too late. Mama had the small white envelope in her hands, was tearing it open. "Mr. John Herbert Beamer," she read, and then squinting to decipher the message, "To greet the returning TRAVELER . . . and all those American beauties! Louise! You don't think Nancy wrote to Mr. Beamer and not her own mother?" Mama's lined little face was all puckered up. Even papa was leaning forward, his sport page pushed aside.

Cause for Worry

"Of course not! Besides, she did write, mama. You had a letter today. She'd have said—"

"She didn't say anything but SCENERY!"

"What's that?" from papa. "I said she didn't say anything but how pretty the scenery was!"

"Then," said papa judiciously, "there was nothing else to say."

"But the flowers—"

Louise put them in water. Violently. She jabbed each thorny stem into the bowl as if it were a pin she was sticking into Jack. Conceited fool, sending Nancy flowers! As if she'd look at him.

But that was the rub. Nancy had looked at him. Her best come-hither look. She must have written to him. . . .

Long after her parents were asleep that night Louise lay awake. She was terribly worried. She might reassure the others but she could not reassure herself. She knew her little sister too well.

"Heavenly view!" Roger had said, sweeping a long, bronzed arm in the direction of the valley.

Nancy looked at it until the bare thought made her yawn. She swept and dusted their two little rooms until they shone, and spent one whole happy morning checking a seed catalogue and making a long, expensive order. She was going to plant a garden, but, of course, she couldn't start until the seeds came.

She had even pressed and renovated the remnants of her Summer finery. The biscuit colored crepe de chine, the blue robe de style and the white georgette hung on scented hangers in the rough board closet. But now that they were all ready there was no place to wear them. If only Roger weren't away all day. . . . If only she had someone to talk to. . . . something to do!

She thought of making a pie for dinner; men love apple pie. She looked all through the cupboard, but not the ghost of a cookbook.

If only she had someone to talk to . . .

She must send for one, then she'd be able to make interesting things for dessert.

Well, she could peel the potatoes for dinner. She did and left them in cold water to soak. Only three o'clock. Far too soon to get dinner. Oh, dear!

Nancy wandered back to the living room and lit a cigarette. Restlessly she poked at the piles of old magazines. Then at Roger's books. She had read until her eyes hurt. What in the world shall I do with myself, she wondered unhappily. Roger will have to take me on his trips, that's all. I can't stay here alone all day!

Funny how she hated it when she was alone and adored it when he was there. It wasn't the same place with Roger and without him.

I suppose that's because I love him so much, she thought, and the thought cheered her. She had loved, anyway. No two people in the world had ever loved as they loved, so tenderly, so flamingly. . . .

The telephone. Their ring, three long and one short.

"Oh Roger, I'm so GLAD you called!" she fairly sang as she took down the receiver.

After a little pause a woman's voice answered.

Nancy held the receiver stupidly. It wasn't Roger. Roger wasn't calling at all. Some girl. "Hello!" she cried again.

"Mrs. Decatur?"

"Yes," Nancy clutched the telephone in an agony of suspense. Some girl calling her. . . some old sweetheart of Roger's. . . no, no, Roger wasn't like that. . . It was bad news. Something had happened to him. He was hurt. . . . killed. . . .

Nothing Wrong

"Oh, what has happened?" she cried, unable to wait patiently for the deliberate voice at the other end.

"Why nothing, Mrs. Decatur! I'm sorry if I scared you. I'm your neighbor—I just wanted to talk!"

Neighbor! Nancy laughed, and wiped her damp forehead with the back of her hand. Neighbor! She had a neighbor and nothing was wrong. . . .

It was Mrs. McKimmons, wife of the ranger who worked under Roger. She had just this minute heard from Mrs. Ackerman, the storekeeper's wife, that Mr. Decatur was married. She'd run right over, only the baby was too heavy to carry and—

"You mean you're near enough to WALK!" Oh, to have someone call on her! Someone to talk to. . . some girl. . . .

"Well, it's about a mile. Write at the lookout on the peak. You just follow the trail from your house. It isn't a bad walk. Or if Mr. Decatur's horse is there—"

Roger's horse, a rangy mare with a roving disposition, was at the moment nibbling some dry grass near the front door. Nancy had not ridden her yet, neither had she ever saddled a horse.

"I'll come—I'll be right over!" she promised.

Maggie, the mare, was just ambling off for parts unknown when Nancy got to the door and, with the aid of a carrot and a fair imitation of Roger's whistle, succeeded in luring her back.

For Company's Sake

The saddle was heavy, heavier than she had dreamed a saddle could be, but she managed to get it on Maggie's back and to cinch it after a fashion. For several moments Maggie refused to have anything to do with the bit. Just when Nancy was about to give up she took it docilely, and with a groan of thanksgiving Nancy dashed back into the house and scrambled into her riding things.

Only a mile, Mrs. McKimmons had said. It seemed like ten to Nancy. The horse had a disconcerting habit of suddenly standing stock still and staring into the brush as if she had glimpsed a grizzly or heard a rattler. When Nancy urged her on she gave a convulsive shudder and tried to turn her head to stare at her rider as if to say, "Very well, if you insist. But it is against my better judgment."

The trail was narrow and at some points, where it wound around boulders and over slippery shale, very steep. At places like this the pensive Maggie was moved to halt and stare into space as if contemplating suicide. Pride kept Nancy from tying her to a bush and continuing the rest of the way on foot, but it was a real relief when the McKimmons' cabin came into view and she saw her hostess waiting for her by the open door.

Heleen McKimmons was a fresh looking girl with a shock of straight taffy colored hair and guileless grey eyes. She wore a faded bungalow apron and a pair of shapeless grey suede oxfords. Three linked safety pins dangled from her breast.

RESPONSIBILITY

The buses of the Delaware River Coach Company and the trolley cars of the Trenton, Bristol & Philadelphia Railway Company render regular, responsible service.

RESPONSIBLE SERVICE means service which surrounds the passenger with reasonable and lawful protection.

It means service regardless of weather conditions.

It means that RESPONSIBLE companies operate the vehicles.

It means that the service is under the authority and subject to the supervision of the State.

These are facts that travelers between Trenton and Torresdale should keep in mind for their own protection.

Irresponsible, illegal and parasitical competitors are operating in this territory, absolutely outside the law. They not only deprive the legal and responsible companies of rightful revenue, but they endanger those who unwittingly patronize their illegal operations.

When you ride a "jitney," you do so entirely at your own risk. These men, operating illegally, offer not the slightest protection to those who ride with them, in the event of accident or damage to property. The risk that patrons of the jitneys run are out of proportion to any imaginable benefit obtainable.

A. O. H. CAGE FIVE
BEATS SCORING RECORD

By T. M. Juno

TULLYTOWN, Jan. 12.—The Bristol A. O. H. five broke the scoring record here Friday night as they buried the Tullytown A. C. team under the score of 73-14.

The visitors showed the home fans that they were all sharpshooters, sinking in field goals from all angles of the court and never seemed to stop.

The Hibernians also showed their prowess in scoring from the fifteen foot mark, making nine goals out of ten tries. Every player on the Bristol team was good for six points or more.

"Jimmy" Lake alone scored enough points to beat the Tullytowners. Lake hit the cords for twelve field goals and two fouls, twenty-six points.

It marked the fourth straight defeat for the home five who just can't seem to get started.

In the preliminary game, the Bristol A. O. H. quintet topped the Tullytown A. C. Jrs. by the count of 19-14.

The Hibernians came through in the closing minutes of play to snatch this tilt which was closely played on both sides.

The Hibernians' five man defense stood out while the Tullytown five employed the man for man defense. Carlen led the home team in scoring with six points. Dugan was high scorer for the "Hibos" with nine points.

HULMEVILLE

The Girls' Friendly Society of Grace P. E. Church will conduct another card party for charity in the fire station, here, on Friday evening at eight o'clock. Pinochle, bridge and "500" will be played. Refreshments will be placed on sale.

Henry Miller, of Hulmeville Road, Middletown Township, is ill at his parents' home.

At the home of Miss Myrtle Egly, Lincoln avenue, tomorrow evening will the Poppy Pals sewing class members be entertained.

The initial service of the series of meetings for men in the Neshaminy M. E. Church was not largely attended yesterday afternoon. The session, however, was a most interesting one, and those in attendance thoroughly enjoyed the splendid discourse presented by the Rev. Isaac E. Brooks, rector of Grace P. E. Church. H. Douglass LeCompte favored with vocal numbers, and the accompanist was Thomas B. Longhurst.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will conduct the mid-week prayer service in the M. E. Church on Thursday evening next at eight o'clock. Several of the women will participate. Mrs. Edward Davis is president.

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa., Jan. 12.—Completion of the first unit of the Philadelphia Memorial Hospital of the Pennsylvania State Masonic Homes for Free and Accepted Masons here has been promised by March 1, 1931. It was announced after a conference of contractors and officials of the fraternal organization.

MECHANICSBURG, Pa., Jan. 12.—First aid stations would be established along highways in Cumberland counties under a plan proposed by the Cumberland County Firemen's Association here. Establishment of the stations would aid in fighting fires in rural sections, it is believed, and would prove a boon to firemen injured in the course of duty.

Fine Moose Heads Are On Exhibition in Window Here

At the requests of members of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association which meets tomorrow night in the Coleman Building, Mill street and Highway, two handsome moose heads are on exhibition in the display window of Spencer & Sons, Mill and Radcliffe streets.

These moose were shot by Dr. H. Doyle Webb and Frank Pfeiffer, who along with Lester D. Thorne comprised a party of Bristol gunners who went into the woods of Canada, Province of Quebec, in search of big game, last September.

The moose were shot in the waters of the Tamarack, near Conquer, and the larger one was brought down by the gun of Dr. Webb. The spread of the antlers is 57 and a half inches and the weight of the moose was 1850 pounds. The bullet which brought down this fine specimen of the forest entered through the jugular vein.

Dr. Webb and his guide came upon the moose near the end of a day of hunting. It was getting dark and the animal seeing his enemies jumped into the waters of the lake and swam to the other side onto land. The Bristol physician aimed and shot, breaking one of the animal's hind legs. At the time of shooting the marksman was scarcely able to distinguish his object, just getting a glimpse of his antlers in the moonlight. Dr. Webb followed the injured animal through dense woods and heavy bushes and with the aid of his guide's flashlight saw him again take to the water and swim away. Again Webb shot and this time caught the moose in the jugular vein.

The smaller head is from the moose brought down by the gun of Frank Pfeiffer. This animal was shot from a canoe at a range of about 175 yards. It was feeding in the water but when the gunners were discovered the moose jumped into the bushes and as he leaped was brought down by Pfeiffer with a bullet through the neck.

The antler spread is 48 inches and the animal weighed 1450 pounds. It is said among gunners that moose hunting has its dangers. The one shot by Dr. Webb is said to be the finest ever brought out of that section of Canada.

Moose, it is said, will attack a man and once they charge will pursue their object until they get him.

RHUM TOURNAMENT

Another rhum tournament will be held by members of the Elks Lodge in their home tomorrow evening, January 13th, with the usual large assortment of wonderful prizes. The committee in charge expects this to be the largest affair of its kind ever held here, and urges the out of town members to attend.

Bristol Folks Attend
Meeting in Philadelphia

A number of Bristolians and members of Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, and Lily Rebekah Lodge No. 366 attended a special meeting at 1 O. O. F. Penn Township Hall, Philadelphia, on Saturday evening. Those attending the meeting from Bristol were Mrs. Anna Robinson, Mrs. Harriet C. Conklin, secretary, Mrs. Stella Fennimore, district deputy president of Bucks county; Noble Grand Samuel H. Conklin, Jr., and Past Grand Howard P. Fennimore, who are members of Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, I. O. O. F.

The meeting hall was filled to capacity with representatives from the southeastern district of Pennsylvania I. O. O. F. lodges.

This meeting was called by Special

District Deputy Samuel Bowen, in which the members voted unanimous in holding a big rally day in Philadelphia in the early spring, having as their guest of honor, the grand sire of U. S. A. and prominent official brothers of the U. S. Government present.

The rally will be held in the Metropolitan Opera House in Philadelphia.

Hopkins Lodge No. 87 of Bristol had the honor of one of its worthy and active past grands, Howard P. Fennimore, of receiving appointment on the executive committee of nine members to map out plans for this big rally day.

To Open Fine Indoor
Golf Course Here Soon

A delightful indoor golf course has been installed in the basement of the Lutheran Parish House. This course is home made with twelve holes, having a total par of 29, in a space sixty feet by forty. There is seating or standing room for forty people. The walls of stone are painted in sky blue and deep green, with outdoor scenery. A Japanese rock garden graces the center over a three-in-one hole. The course is well lighted and heated. The runs are of frame with a hard clay bottom and crushed green stone for a topping, making it non-inflammable.

The course was opened to the public in November but was closed during the holidays. It will reopen this week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

This building has been for many years a place for indoor sports for the public. Basketball, volley ball and indoor tennis were enjoyed by many organizations. A gymnasium was enjoyed by a large community boys' club. Now the present golf course graces its hospitable space, the huge old fashioned beams aloft add additional charm. A radio is being installed. The floor is of cement throughout making movement of players easy. The golf course is operated by the tennis club who for many years have provided a tennis court on the church grounds and other sports. Four holes carry prizes for the movies, one a dollar prize and a standing prize of a gold piece for par. The course is open to the public.

Nothing of this course can be seen from the outside, but as one enters the door, he passes beneath a scenery of trees, descends down one stairway to pass beneath another archway of trees, opens a door and stands wondering whether Aladdin has rubbed his magic lamp.

drains into these man-holes which are located at intervals along the line. It furnished a good supply of water for an hour before it was pumped dry.

The Cornwells Heights Fire Company remained at the scene all night and the Bristol Consolidated Fire Company loaned a hose supply to the Newportville Company to place out their lines.

"I never saw a more spectacular fire in my life," says Fire Marshal Stackhouse. The building had a white oak frame and a metal roof. The weather boards burned away but the frame work stood for an hour before it collapsed, showing that it was well constructed."

Many fire companies from the nearby vicinity responded and hundreds of motorists drove to the scene. Highway patrol officers and firemen directed traffic and at no time were the roads blocked because of the traffic.

the state forests, according to enthusiasts in the movement.

Beside marking the route of the trail, it has been measured accurately with a cyclometer on a measuring wheel. When completed, directions will be available for nearly 1500 miles of continuous hiking trail from Maine to Georgia.

Preparations are now being made to have workers in the mountains as soon as weather permits, to finish up the work of routing it. Much of the trail now being marked and mapped is inaccessible except under extremely favorable weather conditions.

State foresters in many states through which the trail passes are acting as guides for hikers traversing it.

Sport Headliners of 1931

By HARDIN BURNLEY

PUL JESSUP, Steve Anderson, Eric Krenz and Herman Brix were the track and field standouts of 1930 with the National A. A. U. championships, held at Pittsburgh last August, and other competitive figures as the criterion for that accolade.

Jessup of Washington University set a new discus record with a toss of 169 feet, 8 1/2 inches. Less than twenty years ago Olympic events were being won with 96-foot throws!

Eric Krenz held the previous record of 163 feet, 8 1/2 inches, made in 1929. Krenz, by the way, is said to have tossed the discus from 169 to 173 feet on several occasions in practice. Accordingly, many think he will regain leadership before 1931 ends. But to do so, he will have to excel further efforts by the 6-foot-7 Jessup.

Explosive co-ordination of the hurling muscles explains the knock of discus tossing. Jessup is a Carnera in height, while, comparatively, Krenz is short. Yet they are nip-and-tuck rivals in the discus specialty. In that other ancient classic, javelin throwing, America produced in De Mers an other wonder who achieved a mark of 222 feet, 6 1/2 inches, which is at least twelve feet better than any previous U. S. effort in that event.

Herman Brix was once more the big ship in putting, setting a new U. S. record of 52 feet, 5 1/2 inches at Pittsburgh. That was just an inch and a half short of the world's record held by Hirschfeld, the German.

Steve Anderson was again the nation's ace high hurdler. He tied the record of 14.4 seconds in the 120 highs originally set by Earl Thompson, of Dartmouth, ten years ago. Handicapped by a sprained ankle that shortened his season, Anderson did not do so well in the low hurdles. He, like "Discobolus" Jessup, represented Washington University.

It is evident that West Coast wonders again dominated the track and field scene, only Bullwinkle in the East edging temporarily into a place in this sun.
